

// WHY YOU NEED IT

The common misconception about websites is that they will work flawlessly forever. Just like a new car, over time things can start to go wrong with your website.

Modern websites are built with Content Management Systems (CMS) and plug-ins, which require updating over time.

Without these updates your website can stop rendering correctly or even break completely.

The second largest cause of website errors are hackers, targeting your website to break it or manipulate the content and functionality. We know you don't want that!

When it comes to website problems, they are usually related to:

- Old CMS versions
- Security exploits
- New browser versions
- Out of date plug-ins
- Incorrect use of the CMS.

A website is a lot like a car. They both need maintenance to keep running smoothly.
